

The man in the Hathaway shirt

At long last American men are beginning to realize that it is ridiculous to buy good suits and then spoil the whole effect by wearing a cheap, mass-produced shirt. Hence the growing popularity of Hathaway shirts, which are in a class by themselves.

To begin with, Hathaway shirts wear infinitely longer—a matter of years. To go on with, they make you look younger and more distinguished, because of the way Hathaway cut collars—low-sloping and ‘customized’. The whole shirt is cut more generously, and is therefore more comfortable. The tails are longer, and stay in your trousers. The buttons are made of mother-of-pearl—very big and masculine. Even the stitching has an antebellum elegance about it.

Above all, Hathaway make their shirts of very remarkable fabrics, imported from the four corners of the earth—Viyella and Aertex from England, woolen tafeta from Auchterarder in Scotland, Sea Island cotton from the British West Indies, hand-woven silk from India, broadcloth from Manchester, linen batiste from Paris. You will get a great deal of quiet satisfaction out of wearing shirts which are in such impeccable taste.

Hathaway shirts are made by a small company of dedicated craftsmen in the little town of Waterville, Maine. They have been at it, man and boy, for one hundred and fourteen years.

If you want the name of the nearest store where you can buy a Hathaway shirt, send a card to C. F. Hathaway, Waterville, Maine.

PHOTOGRAPHED AT GRIFFIN & HOWE

The Gun is a $2,000 Purdey from England

(The shirt: A Sylex, Sea Island Cotton from Hathaway)

THIS Sea Island cotton is astounding stuff—with fibers three times longer than those of ordinary cotton. It is described in the advertisements as “soft as swansdown, lustrous as satin, absorbent as wool, durable as linen.” It is grown on St. Vincent, Antigua, St. Kitts, Montserrat, Nevis and Barbados.

Then it travels. Between being plucked in the balmy Caribbean sunshine, and its final apotheosis in a shirt by HATHAWAY of Maine, this nonesuch among cottons has been to England and back.

The Sylex Sea Island yarn is spun with loving care by Thomas Oliver & Sons, then woven on the looms of Ashton Brothers—two of the finest mills in England. Notice the extraordinary sheen. You can almost feel its downy softness.

The shirts are superbly tailored, with all the HATHAWAY hallmarks—long tails, single-needle stitching, big ocean pearl buttons. Price: $15.95 in colors and white; at stores that keep up the great tradition. For the name of the store nearest you, write C. F. Hathaway, Waterville, Maine. In New York, telephone OX 7-5566.

"The Man In The Hathaway Shirt" Ad by David Ogilvy
(<https://swiped.co/man-hathaway-shirt-ad-david-ogilvy>)
Swiped in June 2014
Ran 1951