

THE 10-YEAR-OLD ZIPPO IN OUR PICTURE HAS LIGHTED ITS WAY THROUGH MILLIONS OF WORDS. MR. KANTOR STILL USES IT EVERY DAY.

Pulitzer Prize author, MacKinlay Kantor, has used this Zippo lighter since 1951. It still works today.

No matter how old it is, if your Zippo ever fails to work, we'll fix it free

MacKinlay Kantor's Zippo lighter was already three years old when he started to write his magnificent Civil War novel, "Andersonville," in 1953.

In 1955, the book was published and won a Pulitzer Prize for best novel of the year. Mr.

Kantor's Zippo was still working. Every time.

Mr. Kantor is the author of such classics as "The Voice of Bugle Ann" and "Glory For Me," the poignant novel in verse which was the basis for one of the most popular movies of all time, "The Best Years Of Our Lives."

In 1956, Mr. Kantor began writing his major novel "Spirit Lake," which has just appeared. As you can see in our picture, his Zippo lighter is still working today.

Ten-, fifteen-, and twenty-five-year-old Zippos that still work are anything but rare.

OUR PICTURE SHOWS HOW THE UNCOMPLETED ROSE BOWL LOOKED IN THE 1930'S. LOU'S ZIPPO WORKED THE WETTEST GAME IN ROSE BOWL HISTORY

Lou Little used this Zippo lighter when Columbia played in the Rose Bowl Game of 1934. It still works today.

No matter how old it is, if your Zippo ever fails to work, we'll fix it free.

If ever a lighter was put to a test, it was the Zippo Lou Little used during the Rose Bowl Game in 1934.

The rain came down in torrents. The field was a solid sheet of water. Lou smoked a number of cigarettes. The lighter worked every time.

The game is now a football classic. Lou Little has treasured his Zippo ever since.

During his 27 years as coach at Columbia, Lou fielded some great teams. He was equally famous for his interest in the scholastic achievements of his players. A former dean of Columbia College once remarked, "Perhaps some of the best teaching in the University is being done these days by Mr. Little, at Baker Field."

When Lou retired at the end of 1956, he was the dean of American football coaches. The Zippo lighter he used in 1934 still works today.

THE BATTLE-MARKED ZIPPO IN OUR STORY BELONGS TO DONALD G. HYDE, BIRMINGHAM, MICH. HE STILL USES IT EVERY DAY.

Ernie Pyle scratched his shortest war story on this Zippo lighter in 1945. It still works today.

No matter how old it is, if your Zippo ever fails to work, we'll fix it free

TIME: March, 1945. PLACE: Aboard carrier USS Cabot, CVL-28, under way, South Pacific.

Ernie Pyle was aboard. The scuttlebutt was that something big was coming.

A half hour before operation orders were to be opened, a young officer was pumping Ernie

Pyle to find out where the ship was headed.

Ernie wasn't talking. He asked the officer for his Zippo lighter. With a knife, Ernie scratched something on the bottom of the lighter. "Stick this in your pocket," Ernie said, "and promise not to look until the orders are opened."

With the first blast of the bosun's pipe for attention to orders, the young officer took the Zippo from his pocket. Scratched on the bottom of the lighter was the word, Tokyo.

The first all-out carrier assault on the Japanese mainland had begun.
